WILLIAM WOLFF SMITH WRITES FROM WASHINGTON.

HE TOUCHES HOTEL TRUSTS

Tells His Personal Experiences—Interesting Chit Chat by a Good Traveler.

(From William Wolff Smith.)
Special Correspondence.
Washington, D. C.—Years ago, when serving an arduous apprenticeship as a "police reporter," a friend of a philosophical turn of mind advised your correspondent to seek new restaurants. "The theory is simple," said he. "A restaurant which has just opened its doors is freshly decorated, has new silver and linen, carpets and chairs, and, as its success must depend on pleasing the public at the beginning, it will serve the best of food at the most reasonable prices possible. Later, if business is good the prices will go up; if it is poor, the quality of the food will deteriorate. But by the time you will have passed on to another new place and your palate and your pocket-book escape." I followed his advice and found it so excellent that I have applied the same rule to hotels and so, in New York I have rested beneath the roof of one after another of the great modern hosteleries, passing from the old to the new and thus enjoying a procession of houses, freshly decorated, each more luxurious, more completely equipped and more comfortable than the last. But I balked at the St. Regis! Long before its doors were opened and ever since I have not read anything about the hotel that did not dwell on its unparalleled magnificence and its costliness. Personally, what interests the traveler is not so much what the hotel costs the proprietor but how much he, the guest, must pay to enjoy the same. In the case of the St. Regis from what I had read it seemed impossible that it could be within my modest means, so at it I drew the line. A friend questioning me while in New York last week, I explained the situation which caused the New Yorker to smile. "Come with me and see Mr. Haan, the proprietor of the St. Regis," which thing we did. The introductions performed and Mr. Haan being told of my desire to inspect his hotel, he courteously offered himself as our guide and off we went. I therefore saw what we have all read about in magazines, illustrated supplements and the news columns. The state suite with the so-called "13,000 bed,"—it really must have been quite expensive but $10,000 is too much to pay for a bed; the private dining rooms, reception halls, parlors public and private; the "Oak Room," the "Tea Room," the "Main Restaurant," the "Ladies Restaurant," and so on down to the kitchen. It was all magnificent, opulent, but in good taste; where one felt there should be gold, there was gold; where one expected mahogany, one found it; where a beautiful painting should be, it was there, or if a bronze or sevré vase would be better, it was there. And thus through the hotel we went, Mr. Haan pointing out a bewildering mass of detail—he knows every place there is in the house—so it was a succession of "Louis XV," "Louis XVI," "Versailles," "Pavane marble," "Circassian walnut," "tulip wood," "Blanco P. marble," "Lyons brocade."

A Great Physiologist

Once Said That The Way to Keep the Stomach Healthy is to Exercise It.

But He Did Not Tell How to Make It Healthy.

The muscles of the body can be developed by exercise until their strength has increased manifold, and a proper amount of training each day will accomplish this result, but it is somewhat doubtful whether you can increase the digestive powers of the stomach by eating indigestible food in order to force it to work.

Nature has furnished us all with a perfect set of organs, and if they are not abused they will attend to the business required of them. They need no abnormal strength.

There is a limit to the weight a man can lift, and there is also a limit to what the stomach can do.

The cause of dyspepsia, indigestion and many similar diseases is that the stomach has been exercised too much and it is tired or worn out. Not exercise but rest is what it needs.

To take something into the stomach that will relieve it from its work for a short time—something to digest the food—will give it a rest and allow it time to regain its strength.

The proper aid to the digestive organs is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which cure dyspepsia, indigestion, gas on the stomach and bowels, heartburn, palpitation of the heart, and all stomach diseases.

Rest and invigoration is what the stomach gets when you use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, for one grain of the active principle in them is sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of food.

The tablets increase the flow of gastric juice, and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour eructations.

Do not attempt to starve out dyspepsia. You need all your strength.

The common sense method is to digest the food for the stomach and give it a rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not make the cure, but enable the organs to throw off unhealthy conditions.

Perfect digestion means perfect health, for under these conditions only do the different organs of the body work right and receive the building up material found in pure food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a natural remedy and are a specific for stomach troubles. The ablest physicians prescribe them.

The tablets are pleasant to the taste, and are composed of fruit and vegetable extracts, golden seal and pepsin.

At all drug stores—50 cents per package.

"Caen stone," "Kurdish rugs," "Arabian tapestry," "American oak," "Flemish tapestries from a Cremona church," "Royal Dresden," and an infinitum.

"What we have tried to do," said Mr. Haan, "has been to give our guests the comforts of home." "You have succeeded admirably," I replied, thinking it must be a well-to-do person indeed who could have such a home. "I regret you are not one of our guests," he added politely. "But I am not yet a millionaire," I responded. "Nor is it necessary that you should be," was the reply. "You newspaper men are sometimes responsible for a great deal of injury without meaning it," he continued. "Of course it has been pleasant to read the beautiful descriptions of our conveniences and our furnishings, but you have created the impression, which seems to be in your mind also, that this is an extravagant place as well as luxurious." "What are your rates for a room and bath," I inquired, casually. "You can have one for five dollars a day; all the rooms are with bath." I thought a moment; it was what I was paying elsewhere, and I mentally contrasted the two hotels and I immediately responded, "I will move over here at once." "But I regret to say," he concluded, "that there is not a room of any description available at present. I had to give up my private rooms to a guest and am now quartered elsewhere." Eighteen stories of bedrooms, single, and en-suite, at from five to one hundred dollars a day, and all occupied! Surely, I thought, there is money in the hotel business. And so I regretfully departed, promising myself that the next time I visited New York I would stop there if possible.

The friend who had introduced me, being of a utilitarian turn of mind, asked what had impressed me most. "Marbles and rugs, pictures and statuary, furniture and silver have I seen before," I replied. "The mere fact of such an amazing collection, gathered, one might say, from the quarters of the globe and representing the best of European and American art and industry, appeals to me, however, the more strongly because I, for a paltry five dollar note per diem, can enjoy all of this the same as a multi-millionaire. But more than that, for while it represents the height of luxury, opulence and magnificence, nothing is in evidence but good taste, and above all I like the innovations. The perfect ventilation with warm or cool air, regulated by the thermostat, for instance, and especially the cleaning which is done entirely by the vacuum process whereby all dust is eliminated. True, I have seen these elsewhere but not so perfect. I am also taken with the idea of the clock in every room regulated from the central office."

My friend regarded me with a pitying eye. "It is evident you came from Washington," he sneered. "Do you know what made the Waldorf so popular? It was the name which became synonymous with luxury. Attracted by it men of all climes flocked there to meet each other. The Chicago crowd made it their headquarters; millionaires, real, prospective and would-be, stopped there, their heads bowed with financial schemes which they hoped to float. One of the most amusing things about the Waldorf which I ever saw was two men, neither of them with a hundred dollars to his name, trying to impress each other with their wealth in the hope the other would invest in a scheme." "And the St. Regis?" I asked. "No," he replied, thoughtfully, "that will be different; that is nothing flashy, nothing gaudy about it. The people who stop there and will patronize it in the future are the solid, substantial people; New Yorkers whom the servant question has driven from luxurious private establishments; foreign celebrities like De Witte, and his suite, in other words, men and women whose social and business standing is assured, appreciating what they get and willing to pay a fair price for it. Let's stop in Delmonico's for a drink," he added, interrupting himself. "Seated at the table he remarked to a waiter, 'The place seems deserted.' 'Yes,' was the bitter reply: 'they have gone to the St. Regis.' 'Eighteen stories of them!' I commented as we left."

The cash register trust is reported to have eliminated its "knock-out" department. To the uninitiated, this means little, but it is of great importance to those who know how valuable this department has been to the trust in times gone by. As the same tactics have been employed by other trusts, notably the Standard Oil company, a line on the "knock-out" department may be timely and interesting. In the case of the cash register trust, the duties of employees of this department consisted of knocking the opposition machine on something like this plan. A purchaser of an independent machine no sooner had it installed but he found a pleasant customer who was greatly interested in the subject, and who, as a favor, asked that he might examine the machine. Somehow or other it was invariably noticed that the register, after the customer examined it, always failed to work properly; a touch of the finger or a minute particle of metal was sufficient to throw it out of gear. While the purchaser of the machine was fussing over it and telephoning for the agent to come and repair it, in walked the agent of the trust, who sought to impress upon his mind that the machine was no good and he ought to throw it away and buy the trust machine. If this process did not work the first time, it was repeated, until at last, the storekeeper, indignant that the independent machine was "always out of order," altered by the representatives of the trust, threw away the independent machine and bought one from the trust.

"Well," I inquired from the party that told me: "What does that mean?" "It means the trust no longer fears opposition. It feels it has a cinch." So when I next met the man who tipped me off to the organization of a new independent company, I immediately called his attention to this matter. "Yes," he said, "the trust has abolished its 'knock-out' department, and it is now independent of the labor unions, which shows how strong it feels, but the more fact that it has no 'knock-out' department will operate in our favor for it takes a long time to thoroughly organize one and in the meantime we can get out our machines and sell them. We have studied the organization of the trust carefully and propose to follow its lines closely. We will have our men go about 'knocking' their machines, putting them out of order when they can, and, in short, we propose, like Hannibal, to 'carry the war into Italy.' 'Is that so?' I inquired; 'and have you the money?' 'More than we need is pledged, and we have a good offer for our foreign patents.' 'Success to you,' I said, 'but I have seen trust-busting tried before and am skeptical.' 'We propose to sell for cash, in stead of payments,' he concluded, 'and can thus sell the machines much cheaper. Look out for developments soon.'"

Sometime ago I visited New York and found the feeling in the financial district one of soreness against the investigation into the affairs of the insurance companies. At that time it was felt that financial institutions were being unjustly attacked because of their connections with the insurance companies. A few days ago I again visited Wall street, but how the feeling has changed! Where before there were expressions of condemnation and bitterness, "It is awful," said one of my friends, confidentially. "The revelations of mismanagement have far surpassed our expectations. Corruption of all kinds seems to have been rampant. It has gone further and shaken the confidence of the people, and, I believe, is largely responsible for the restricted condition of the money market. Formerly the insurance companies will be ready to go into almost any kind of a syndicate at a word from the proper parties, and the millions of floating cash assets were available. Now every one is so scared, old connections have been broken off, and you can't pry a dollar from an insurance company without the best collateral. One after another, the great insurance companies will be reorganized like the Equitable, but it will be long before confidence is restored and meanwhile the street is suffering. We are on the brink of a panic and any time money tightens suddenly and the strain is too great, and stocks begin to tumble in on us, off we will go. Times are good but the volume of money available for Wall street needs, is not sufficient to carry the immense volume of stocks, and that amount has been decreased because they have no longer access to the mobile funds of the life insurance companies, whose revenues, incidentally, are greatly suffering. When the time comes look out for gilt-edged stocks cheap." "You must be a bear," was suggested. "I am. I am out of stocks waiting to pick up bargains."

"What is the B. and O. doing for itself" was asked of Mandel Seuer, the popular press representative of that railroad when he was here today. "The B. and O. has spent a hundred millions in improvements during the past nine years and is still improving itself," was the reply. "The inquiry 'what was done with this money' brought a string of technical jargon from the lips of Mr. Seuer, who has the case well in hand. "Now tell me," I asked, when he had concluded, "what does all that mean in plain English and briefly." "It means," he responded, "that we have improved the track, the road-bed, the rolling stock and the terminal facilities." "And the personnel," I suggested, politely. "Not at all," he disputed; "but really we have done great work and are still going on with it. Years ago Messrs. Murray and Cowan, the co-receivers, enunciated the theory that between Chicago and the Alleghenies the railroad with the lowest possible grade and minimum curvature will command the flow of the two currents of traffic—coal and iron from the regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and grain, provisions and cattle seeking the eastern markets. As a result of working out this plan, the B. and O. now has grades and curves that firmly establish it as the most natural route, the avenue of least resistance for the movement of traffic of all classes between the Atlantic seaboard and Chicago. Between here and New York—'You don't have to tell me about that route,' I interrupted, with a smile. "I like the regularity of your service once an hour to Baltimore; every two hours to Philadelphia and New York. In fact, I always patronize your road," adding significantly, after a pause, "and I always 'pay my way.' 'Let's liquor,' said Mr. Seuer."

Letter to Mr. A. M. McDougall, Janesville, Wis.
Dear Sir: A great many people will see your house in the course of the next ten years. We want it to show what Devoe lead-and-zinc will do. We should like you to paint it, and then not paint it again for ten years—unless it needs repainting. We'd like such a sample as that in every town in the country—with a notice about it in the local paper: "Mr. ———'s house was painted ten years ago with Devoe lead-and-zinc, and has never been repainted. The color is not so bright as it was; but the paint is as perfect a coat as ever, to keep out water." A good lead-and-oil job is expected to last three years; it is a good one that lasts three years; it generally does not. Devoe lead-and-zinc lasts twice as long if not more.

"If you have any fault to find with this paint, either now in putting it on, or hereafter in the wear, tell your dealer about it."

"We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."

We want your house as a sample, and you as a witness.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.

BEAUTIFUL BALL OF RAILWAY TRAINMEN

Two Hundred Couples Attended Delightful Event on Wednesday Evening—Lavish Decorations.

Assembly hall, in its new garb of festive colors and its myriads of lights, was the scene Wednesday evening of one of the most remarkable dancing parties given in Janesville for several years. Rock River Lodge No. 210 of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has long been noted for the lavish decorations and admirable appointments of its annual balls, but on this occasion all previous efforts were outdone. The orchestra stand and every available nook and corner were banded high with palms and potted plants which formed the background for great clusters of white chrysanthemums and under a multitude of lights grouped in the form of an immense star on the ceiling hung a great ball of green incandescents, half-concealed by the festoons of smilax. Nearly two hundred couples were on the floor when Knelt & Hatch's full orchestra sounded the opening number and from that time until long after midnight the merry-making was in full swing. The committees in charge of this auspicious and delightful affair were: Arrangements—J. J. Dulin, F. Williams, and J. J. Foley; Reception—all members of the lodge; Floor—J. J. Kelly, J. J. Foley, Henry Young, J. J. Dee, D. Barry, and J. P. Dixon.

If you like Mrs. Austin's famous Duck-wheat flour, would you kindly tell your friends how delicious it is?

FORGOT TO RETURN THE RARE COIN SPECIMEN

Henry Meehan is Spending a Few Days in County Jail on Account of Little Oversight.

Because he neglected to return a dollar which his supposed scientific interest in rare coins led him to borrow of Landlord Lee of the Astor House, Beloit, Henry Meehan is spending a few days at the county jail. When Mr. Meehan asked the landlord to "let him see a dollar" the latter, taking it for granted that a slight of hand trick or some interesting numismatic information was to be forthcoming, readily complied. Meehan held the coin before a light, gazed at it with a rapt expression for a time, and then passed swiftly out of the hotel office and into the street. When the stupefied proprietor recovered from his astonishment he hastily sent for a policeman.

GETS A HANDSOME MEDAL OF BRONZE

E. B. Heimstreet Receives One of the 20,000 Distributed by Z. G. Simons of Kenosha.

E. B. Heimstreet has received one of the large bronze medals presented by Zalmou G. Simons, the Kenosha millionaire and philanthropist to each member of the Grand Army of the Republic who attended the annual encampment at Denver last September, and others. The souvenir is a facsimile of the memorial presented to the widow of the late Gen. Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., who visited Mr. Simons' home last June. Twenty thousand of these discs were struck off. Upon one side is the inscription: "In honor of the brave men who victoriously defended the union on land and sea during the war of the great rebellion, 1861-1865." Surrounding this is the legend: "Thirty-fourth National Encampment, G. A. R., Denver, Sept., 1905." On the reverse side is a picture in bas-relief of the observation tower on the apex of Pike's peak, together with a train on the Manitou and Pike's Peak railway, which was built by Mr. Simons.

RAILWAY NOTES.

New York—Railway men in Wall street no longer attempt to conceal their disappointment over the failure of the Hill-Morgan interests to secure control of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Several who are in a position to know say that such a deal might have been carried through successfully had not an inkling of the intention of the American millionaires escaped to Canada, where holders of Canadian Pacific stock were selling freely to take advantage of the high price which it was bringing. As soon as it was learned, however, that Americans were buying the stock with a view to getting control of the road, Canadian stockholders kept back their stock and the plan went through. Subsequently it has developed that the floating stock of the company is about 5 per cent. only, the other 75 per cent. being held in England, where it is not likely to be disposed of.

Publishers have made so many complaints to the Alton system, that all its agents and baggage men have been notified that the theft of newspapers from packages shipped over the road must cease. It is said that shortages ranging from one to five copies in each bundle have become so numerous that action was thought necessary by the officials. They are satisfied that the papers are being taken by persons either in the station or train service.

Buffalo is at last to have its hopes of a quarter a century or more realized by having a grand new union passenger station, with all the comforts and facilities which such a structure affords. Other roads, entering Buffalo, have signified a willingness to follow the New York Central, which has started the movement, and all that now remains is for Buffalo to supply the site. This will probably be on William Street, East Buffalo, on a site that is now occupied by the New York Central stock yards.

All the important transportation companies in Michigan have decided to restore the northern inflange bureau, which was dissolved when they joined the Central Passenger Bureau. The Michigan Central and Grand Rapids & Indiana have not yet agreed to the plan, and it is not certain whether they will. These two systems are the only exceptions to the general rule.

CAME TWO HUNDRED FIFTY YEARS AGO

Jews Celebrated the Anniversary of First Hebrew Arrivals in America.

The Jews of the United States celebrated Thursday in every city and village the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the arrival of their race in this land. The first colonists arrived here in November, 1654, in the bark Santa Catarina, which hailed from Brazil, then a Portuguese possession. There were twenty-seven men, women and children. One of the main objects of the celebration was, said the committee, which is composed of some of the most distinguished Hebrews in the country, to emphasize the fact that the Jews are not newcomers or interlopers, but that they have been part and parcel of the builders of the nation and willing sharers of its burdens when such were needed to be borne, and because of this fact are entitled to every benefit of American citizenship. While the special Thanksgiving meeting was a reverent celebration, many distinguished speakers, as in New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, St. Louis and other cities where the largest celebrations were held, did not lose an opportunity to plea for justice for the Jews who are being persecuted in Russia. The general committee has also completed plans for erecting a memorial in honor of the late John Hay, who, as secretary of state, did so much toward the amelioration of the condition of their co-religionists in Russia, Roumania and other countries. Last future generations may forget, it is also proposed to place in every synagogue in the United States a perpetual reminder of Colonel Hay in the form of a stained glass window or a tablet of marble or bronze suitably inscribed.

= FORTY YEARS AGO =

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, Dec. 1, 1865.—The 13th Again.—We understand that the wife of Major Cobb of the 13th regiment, received a letter from her husband yesterday, dated San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 12th, in which he states that the regiment was to start for home on the 28th of November, but there has been a delay in making out the papers. As this is later than anything yet received we presume it is reliable.

Some fifty or sixty of the mechanics and laboring men of this city, assembled last evening at Rogers' and Hutchins's paint shop, in pursuance of a notice published in the Gazette. The object of the meeting was stated to be to discuss the feasibility of organizing some sort of an association through which they might purchase groceries and provisions at a cheaper rate than they are now doing by retail. After considerable discussion it was finally decided to appoint a committee of five whose duty it should be to prepare a constitution and by-laws for the organization of a joint stock company to establish a union store. Such committee was accordingly appointed and empowered to call future meetings. An attempt was also made to have some action, relative to the eight-hour system, taken by the committee, but without success.

Common Council.—At a regular meeting of the Common Council last evening His Honor, the Mayor presided. Aldermen Conrad, Eldred, Jackson, Jackson and McDougall being present.

A communication from Boyd & Co. in reference to establishing a Merchants' Police in the city was on motion of Alderman Jackson, referred to a special committee of three. The Mayor appointed Aldermen Jackson, Conrad and Eldred said committee.

Friday, December 1, 1865.—Merchants' Police.—Editors Gazette.—I notice in your issue of Thursday, among other things in the proceedings of the Common Council, a proposition for instituting a "Merchants' Police" here. I hope the measure will be adopted. The increase of crime throughout the whole country, calls loudly upon our public authorities to adopt precautionary measures, as far as possible against the perpetration of murder, fires and thefts, even though it costs something. Other cities are adopting precautionary measures, why should not Janesville do so?

I understand that the gentlemen proposing to organize a "Merchants' Police" here, ask nothing from the city government, relying entirely upon weekly subscriptions (which should be liberal) of our citizens. We hope our citizens will take hold of this matter, and now that opportunity offers, not let it fall through. Let us have a police.

A CITIZEN.

..COMING ATTRACTIONS..

Among the many captivating stories for children, none is so popular as the beautiful fairy tale of "Alice in Wonderland," by Lewis Carroll; so popular has this become that it is now installed as a reader in most of the public schools throughout the land. Almost every mother and every child is now familiar with the strange and beautiful dream of "Alice in Wonderland," but it is not until quite recently that this charming story has been set to music and dramatized. The operaetta scene destined to become as famous as the story under the skillful direction of the dramatizer, Miss D. Hope Leonard, and the able management of Col. John F. Bragg of New York City, who have been engaged in presenting the grand spectacular production in the principal cities and theatres during the past few seasons. The production is magnificently staged and requires from one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty people to assist the principals in presenting the various scenes portrayed by the author. The Rabbit, Cat, Gryphon, Mock Turtle, Hatter, and other numerous animals are introduced as well as the King, Queen, Duchess, etc., etc., accompanied by fairies, attendants, policemen, judges, etc., etc.

WEATHER FORECAST

Showers and warmer, followed by colder.

"Making a mull of a thing" is the Scotch phrase for a man who shows little discretion, who wastes his ammunition, who mixes and muddles an enterprise. Many a merchant makes a "mull" of a store-venture by wasting his publicity ammunition.

Did anybody have occasion to thank God yesterday because you was a neighbor?

With turkeys at twenty-two cents per pound it required something of an effort to be thankful.

Hold on to your life insurance policies. They are just as good as ever, and the prospects for dividends better than ever before.

One object of the extra session is to take another twist in the lion's tail. "God's patient poor" must be protected at all hazards.

Janesville is enjoying a good trade in spite of the post-office epidemic. The disease is contagious and liable to break out in violent form.

The compromise candidate for the post-office will not be a woman, however well qualified she may be. The chances are that no recommendation will be made before next summer.

Senator Whitehead failed to gain an audience with the first district congressman and he was the only man who ventured the effort outside the ranks of the faithful. Politics make strange bed-fellows.

People who imagine that the governor is going to the senate, have another guess coming, and people who think that he won't, are equally fortunate. It's a case of "now you see it and now you don't."

It remains to be seen whether or not the one hundred and fifty men who compose the Wisconsin state legislature, are men or machines. It is high time that the peoples' representatives did some thinking on their own account.

One of the attorneys who is working against Judge Dunwiddie, is circulating the report that he is not a candidate. That sort of campaigning will be a help to the peoples' candidate.

There should be no horse-play about the extra session. The only legitimate business is to relieve an over-burdened governor of office, and this ought to be done in about fifteen minutes.

The governor's Milwaukee organ attempts to defend the call for an extra session, on the grounds that the governor's resignation could only be considered by the legislature. The organ forgets to add that there was ample time for this performance between January and June.

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHES.

Tariff revision is one of the questions that will command the attention of congress at the coming session. The reformers of the country are just now prominent and they have quite an extended following.

To these men the tariff is responsible for monopoly, to large extent, and so there is a general clamor, all along the line for readjustment and revision. This sentiment is endorsed by democracy and Bryanism, so that the array is quite formidable.

On the other side is the conservative business element of the country, backed by industrial and financial interests, advocating in practically united voice against tariff tinkering. While it is admitted that a few changes might be made to advantage, the danger of opening up the subject is fully appreciated, and the unsettling of values, and loss of confidence, sure to follow, is regarded as a national calamity.

The publishers of the country are more directly interested in the tariff, than any other class of artisans, because they are obliged to pay out of their own pockets a higher price for paper than would be demanded if the duty were removed from Canadian pulp, and yet but few of the publishers are advocating tariff revision, because they recognize the danger of opening the gates.

The shoe always pinches someone, when the tariff is revised, and it pinched in so many places when the democratic party engineered the job, during the last Cleveland administration that our industries were badly crippled.

A bill will be introduced in the next congress to reduce the tariff on Philippine tobacco, and should it succeed it will prove a great injustice to American growers as well as to American labor.

Bernard & Wilder of Evansville, are sending out a letter to farmers, urging them to enter a protest against the bill and giving reasons why it should not become a law. They say, in part:

"The Secretary of War, who has just returned from the Philippine Islands, has determined to make every possible effort to secure the passage early in the coming congress of the so-called Curtis bill providing for the reduction of the duties on Philippine leaf tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, etc., to twenty-five per cent, of the Dingley rates. Should this bill become a law very serious injury to the tobacco industry in the United States would follow.

"There are two important points to be kept in mind in considering the tobacco industry in the Philippine Islands: the low wages prevailing in the islands and the unlimited opportunity there for the extension of tobacco cultivation. Farm hands in the Philippines average, according to the official reports, from fifteen to twenty cents per day. Fertilizers are not necessary in the production of Philippine tobacco and are never used for that purpose; as you are well aware, they are essential in this country in order to grow our domestic cigar types successfully.

"The location of the Philippines is essentially favorable to the growth of tobacco. Cuba, Porto Rico, Botocoe, Java, and Samatra, which are similar in soil and climate, are great tobacco growing countries. The islands are admittedly adapted to the growth of tobacco of good quality in large quantities. Luzon, the largest Philippine island, is as big as Ohio; which produced last year, at a valuation of 7.5 cents per pound, $3,093,255 worth of cigar tobacco. Mindanao is as big as New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut put together, which states, between them produced last year $6,307,324 worth of tobacco at an average of 21.6 cents per pound. Or to use another comparison, Luzon and Mindanao are one and one-half times as big as Cuba. Seven additional Philippine islands—Panay, Leyte, Samar, Mindoro, Negros, Cebu and Faragau—are each about the size of Porto Rico. Porto Rico shipped us last year 2,900,000 pounds of tobacco and 74,000,000 cigars. We tobacco men cannot consent to the admission of the tobacco of one and one-half Cubas and seven Porto Ricos at one time, conceding it at the start at 75 per cent. reduction from our tariff rates, and eventually free trade.

"As to cigars, the low wages of the Philippines will cause the transfer of our cigar-making industry to the islands. Philippine cigar wages are from one-sixth to one-fourth of our wages, and as cigar makers get so much per thousand. This furnishes an absolutely correct basis of comparison. The capacity of the Philippine cigar maker exactly equals that of the American, according to the tables furnished by the War Department.

"The whole purpose of the Philippine tariff reduction agitation as applied to tobacco, resolves itself into a plan, not to give back to the Philippines a prosperity in the tobacco business that has been taken from them by the United States, but to provide a new market here for them at the expense of our farmers and manufacturers. In other words, the United States is to offer the Philippine Islands a premium to go into the tobacco business on a larger scale, and the domestic tobacco trade is to suffer the consequence."

The argument is sound, from a protective standpoint and sentiment should not be permitted in the discussion. It is a good time to let well enough alone.

PRESS COMMENT.

Gridiron Cries for Lawson. Chicago Tribune: Football, we fear, will never be thoroughly reformed until Tom Lawson takes hold of it.

Skibo is Still Un-Encumbered. Exchange: Andrew Carnegie is credited with having given away $129,000,000, and there is no mortgage as yet on the castle of Skibo.

Coincidence Remarkable, if True. Green Bay Gazette: Strange, isn't it, that just a little previous to Thanksgiving of each year the powers get busy with Turkey and threaten to dismember it?

Society of the Ex-Anointed. Madison Journal: Why not get up a Dane County Society of Ex-La Follette Aides? There's us, and Uncle Eli Pederson and John Estes and a lot of good fellows.

Norway's New Flag. Oshkosh Northwestern: The new flag of Norway will be a golden lion on a purple field, although it is pretty hard to understand what there is about the little kingdom to suggest a lion.

Brotherly Love Pressed Too Far. Chicago Record-Herald: When two preachers met at Richmond, Va., a few days ago they hugged each other so fervently that one of them retired with a broken rib. This shows that even brotherly love can go too far.

Victim of Over-Prosperity. La Crosse Leader-Press: Mr. La Follette is a victim of over prosperity in politics. He holds the two best offices in the state and simply

How About That Pelican?

Madison Democrat: Still, the chief game warden really is not presenting results to show that he is so busy that attention may not be turned for a moment to the lawlessness of the Sharon sport who slaughtered a pelican on the Appleton man who killed an eagle.

CHICAGO CHAMPION OF THE GRIDIRON

Defeats Michigan's Team—Ft. Atkinson Also Beaten—Other Football News.

Chicago is the champion of the western football field. Coach Yost has met his first defeat and Coach Stagg has demonstrated that he can develop football material to order. The game in Chicago yesterday resulted in a victory in the shape of a safety made through an error of a Michigan player. Chicago took the honors and Michigan the defeat. In the east Pennsylvania was barely able to win from Cornell. However, it is nip and tuck now between Yale and Pennsylvania for first honors of the east, although Yale has an unbroken string of victories, while Pennsylvania has one defeat. At Ft. Atkinson the strong South Side Milwaukee team swamped the locals and won hands down by a score of 47 to 0. E. Haumerson, coach of the Janesville team officiated as referee at the game. Other games played yesterday are: Nebraska 24, Illinois 6; Iowa 31, St. Louis 10; Ohio 11, Ohio State 0; Knox 19, Washington 6; Case 24, Western Reserve 0; Ohio Medies 17, Dennison 0; Kentucky 40, Ohio Wesleyan 0; Cincinnati 23, Kenyon college 4; Kansas 24, Missouri 0; Oklahoma 28, Bethany college 0; Colorado 39, Haskell 0; Ames 17, Iowa 0; Penn college 21, Des Moines college 6; Washington 27, Jefferson 24; Lehigh 0; Holy Cross 27, Fordham 5; Carlisle 72, Georgetown 6; Georgia Tech 17, Clemson 0; Penn State 6; Western 0; Washington and Lee 17, George Washington 0; North Carolina 17, Virginia 0; Gettysburg 72, Franklin and Marshall 0; Wyoming seminary 16, Princeton second 4; Lafayette 47, Bucknell 0. Other games in Wisconsin are: St. Johns 50, Northwestern academy 0; North-western 6, Milwaukee Medics 0; Marinette 4, Menominee 0; Baraboo high 6, Baraboo All Stars 0; Wayland academy 22, Echols (Madison) 0; Sun Prairie 11, Madison Stars 0; Monroe 0, Oshkosh alumni 0; Oshkosh high 12, Oshkosh alumni 0; Sparta 22, Wausau 0; Green Bay East 21, Green Bay West 0; Deper 12, Chilton 0; Port Washington 10, Riversides (Milwaukee) 6; St. Thomas university 7, Wisconsin Business 0; Ishpeming 17, Grand Rapids (Mich.) 5; Deper 12, Chilton 0; Co. 1, Marinette, 11, Green Bay Athletics 0; West Bend 21, Marquette Second 0; Kenosha 10, Calumet, Chicago, 6.

FORCE GIRLS TO MARRY STRANGERS FOR MONEY

Foreigners in Western Canada Compel Daughters to Go to the Altar and Priests Lead Their Aid.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 1.—An alarming state of affairs in regard to marriage regulations exist in western Canada among foreigners, according to a statement made by Rev. Father Blazowski, editor of a Polish paper and priest of the Polish Independent Catholic church in this city.

He declares that parents sell their children to men for a consideration and that they are married at ages as low as 13. This statement was made when he was shown an interview given by a Galician priest, who denied the existence of such a condition of affairs as charged by Mrs. Chisholm of Winnipeg at the W. C. T. U. convention held at Hamilton. Father Blazowski said:

"I have known many cases of Polish and Galician girls of only 13 and 14 years of age being given by poor parents in return for money to be married to men they know nothing about and have no wish whatever to marry. Girls belonging to my own congregation have been married in this way, not by me. If a man asks me to marry him to a child like that I tell him that it would be a crime and that I can not do it. There are priests in this city, however, who will marry them readily enough, making the bridegroom pay sometimes $50 for performing the ceremony because the girl is so young."

Cheer Up.

By continued study of the things that depress and the things that exalt, one is able to see the way to positive-ness by accumulated strength.—Earl M. Pratt.

TOOTH TALKS

"Why didn't you pull them out," said an awakening patient to Dr. Richards recently. He had taken VITALIZED AIR to have his teeth extracted and so completely successful was the effect that he was not aware that his teeth were already in the waste basket.

When he took a look at his mouth he could hardly believe his eyes—Teeth, all out!

No feeling or pain whatever. He looked upon the Dentist as if he were a wizard.

There's nothing supernatural about it.

Just a pleasant putting of nerves to sleep of 10 seconds and the job is all over.

Try it yourself.

Dr. Richards has used this method for 12 years and ought to be skilled through experience.

TALKS OF OLD DAYS AT TOMBSTONE, ARIZ.

George D. Stanhouse Was a Deputy Sheriff There in the "Olden Days."

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Stanhouse of Chicago are in the city, the guests of Mrs. Stanhouse's sister, Mrs. Sarah Jackson of 205 South Franklin street, and Mrs. Margaret Allen. Mrs. Stanhouse will be remembered as Miss Kittie Roberts, a former resident of Janesville. Mr. Stanhouse is a westerner and full of interesting stories of the early days of the west. Born on what was then the frontier he has lived many years in the strenuous days of the past.

A Deputy Sheriff. Mr. Stanhouse was a deputy sheriff in Tombstone, Arizona, in the early eighties. He was a member of the famous 101 vigilant organization that cleaned that western colony of the bad men and women. He has served eight years as a government secret service man, has seen death at the mouth of revolver and rifle, and is a lifelong friend of Captain Jack Crawford, the noted scout of the southwest. His stories are most interesting. His adventures, like those taken from the pages of fiction, and his intimate knowledge of the west of yesterday and the west of today are extensive.

With Johnny Behan. Mr. Stanhouse was one of the first deputy sheriffs in Tombstone, Arizona. This was in 1879, when the famous John H. Bechtel was sheriff, and Mr. Stanhouse was his deputy from that time until 1882. He saw "Buckskin Frank" (N. F. Leslie) kill "Billie the Kid No. 2," one of the noted bad men of the southwest, on the streets of Tombstone and relates with feeling the subsequent career of "Buckskin Frank," who has recently been discharged from prison, where he was serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife.

As a Ranger. On the memorable occasion when the Daprs were captured by one lone deputy, Mr. Stanhouse was one of the Vigilance committee that drove all the bad men and women from the city. He was a ranger in days when to be one meant to take your life in your hands, and later a secret service man in the department of justice. The west of the early eighties is no more. The bad men are gone and forgotten. A few remain, but they have become more civilized. The old gun fights and the killing of the citizens of an eastern community by gun play are past, but it was during this time that Mr. Stanhouse saw service in the role of a "colonizer."

Not an Old Man. Mr. Stanhouse is not an old man. His hair is tinged with grey, his face smooth and for a mustache. He has a cool eye and a firm mouth. Strong and springy on his feet, he has been a bad man to tackle before or behind a gun. Mr. and Mrs. Stanhouse will remain in Janesville over Sunday.

DENISON TROPHY IS TAKEN BY SENIORS

Defeated Sophomore Team in Game Yesterday Morning—Score Was Eleven to Naught.

In the last interclass football game of the season the Seniors of the high school yesterday morning defeated the Sophomores by a score of 11 to 0. Both teams were crippled by the absence of regulars, but played a snappy game, Bennett starring for the upper classmen and P. Connors for their opponents. The result decides the award of the Denison trophy cup.

HASTENING TO HELP WRECKED STEAMSHIP

Special Train from Chicago Passed Through This City Wednesday Noon—Geo. Luxton's Brother on Binghamton.

The special train from Chicago, sent to Duluth with heavy pumps and other paraphernalia required in the extensive wrecking operations necessary as a result of the ship's foundering and going aground in the big storm, passed through Janesville over the North-Western at noon Wednesday. The train consisted of a locomotive, two flat-cars, and coach No. 401. President Coulby and Marine Supt. W. W. Smith of the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. of Cleveland were aboard. From Elroy the train made 60 miles an hour and a fresh engine was provided here.

Hugh Luxton, a brother of George Luxton of this city, was wheelman on the "Binghamton" which weathered the terrible storm and reached Chicago yesterday morning.

THANKSGIVING DAY AT MYERS THEATRE

Fair-Sized Audiences Witnessed Two Performances of "The Kerry Fair" Yesterday.

Fair-sized audiences witnessed the matinee and evening performances of "The Kerry Fair" at the Myers theatre yesterday. The offerings were heralded as a "romantic Irish play" with Edwin Hanford and Bella Hart in the leading roles. While there was some difficulty in ascertaining what it was all about and why, the spectators seemed to enjoy it. Hanford as "Mykes Shannon" scaled castle walls, saw visions, bobbed up serenely after being supposed buried in an abyss, upset the crafty plans of the villain, and gave at least one of them the sound thrashing he so richly deserved. The way the agile Mykes would project himself through space in a sort of a high dive when commencing an onslaught on a foe was really good to see. The piece was well staged and most parts were uniformly well taken.

POLICE ON LOOKOUT FOR DAGO MURDERER

Giovanni Allotta, Who Slew Infant Nephew with Revolver at Milwaukee, Traced to Elkhorn.

City Marshal Appleby this morning received a telephone message from the Milwaukee chief of police stating that Giovanni Allotta, the Italian who killed his nineteen-months-old nephew and wounded his brother and sister-in-law with a revolver late Monday afternoon because the two latter ones insisted that he go to work or pay his board, had been traced to Elkhorn and asking the local officers to keep a sharp lookout for him. The description given was as follows: 24 years old, five feet, four or five; weight, 130 pounds; slim built, dark complexion, small black mustache, 2 weeks' growth of beard, blue eyes wild and staring, black hat, dark suit, no overcoat, wore a pair of slippers. The baby was killed while resting in the arms of its mother. The latter had her left arm fractured by one bullet and her breast grazed by another.

Will Be Held from Brown Home on Fourth Avenue at 10:30 Tomorrow Morning.

Ralph Adair and Robert N. McMillan, Jr., his law partner, arrived from Iowa, Kansas, late evening with the remains of Mrs. Cora Brown Adair, who passed away shortly after four o'clock Wednesday morning. The adjournment of the court out of respect to the memory of the lost one and the presence of the bar association and the members of the Elks' lodge at the depot as the train left Iowa testified eloquently to the high esteem in which the young Janesville people were held in their new home. When it was learned that the train was to be two hours late at Kansas City and likely to result in a long delay there, these same friends wired ahead and secured a special to Chicago. All of the organizations with which Mr. Adair was identified sent flowers. One of the set pieces is a wreath from the police force. The funeral is to be held from the Brown home at 109 Fourth avenue at half-past ten o'clock tomorrow morning, Rev. R. C. Donlon officiating.

Mrs. Adair had been ill for a week, but her condition was not believed to be serious until Saturday, when it seemed advisable to secure the services of a trained nurse. Even then there was nothing alarming in the symptoms and as late as Tuesday evening she talked very cheerfully for an hour or more. Later that night, however, her heart action became irregular and physicians called in consultation decided that general peritonitis had set in. It was repeatedly necessary to stimulate the heart action and during the slumber which followed one of these severe spells she breathed her last.

Mrs. Ida Brown, mother of the deceased, has sufficiently recovered from the terrible shock to regain her self-control. It is her wish to see the home where her daughter lived just as it was when she died and she will accompany Mr. Adair and Mr. McMillan when they take their leave for Iowa next Sunday evening.

Miss Maude Oakley. All that is mortal of the late Miss Maude Oakley was tenderly laid to rest in the cemetery at Milton Junction today, funeral services being held from the home on Bennett street this morning at ten o'clock. Rev. H. C. Boissier was the officiating clergyman and the pallbearers were all nephews of the deceased—Clement Simmons, Roy Simmons, Norvel Oakley, Stuart Oakley, Henry Rook and Dan Creighton.

Burdick's Theatre Burned: At 8 o'clock this afternoon a fire broke out in Clarence Burdick's Bijou theatre and entirely destroyed the stage. The most serious loss was sustained by actors. Leroy Benson, a vaudeville performer, claims to be a loser to the extent of $2,000. The blaze started at one o'clock. No performance was in progress.

MRS. DELLA STANTON TO ROBERT POLLOCK

Quiet Marriage Ceremony at Baptist Church Parsonage Wednesday Evening.

Mrs. Della Stanton was united in marriage to Robert Pollock, Wednesday evening. The ceremony occurred at the Baptist parsonage and was performed by Rev. R. M. Vaughan. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will reside at 255 South Bluff street, and hosts of friends will extend congratulations.

Brize-Currier. A pretty home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Perrigo on Ruger avenue yesterday afternoon, when their niece, Miss Hattie Brize, became the wife of Eugene Currier. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Vaughan at four o'clock. The happy couple were unattended and only the immediate relatives were present. The bride is a very popular young lady and the groom is a worthy young man employed by the Bicknell Hardware company. Upon returning from a wedding trip they will make their home at 255 Center avenue.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS HONORED. THANKSGIVING WITH SPECIAL EXERCISES WEDNESDAY

Operatta Presented at Adams School by Second, Seventh and Eighth Grades.

In all the grades of the Janesville public schools Wednesday Thanksgiving exercises, pretensions in some cases and simple in others were held. Surprise parties were rendered the children of the kindergartens. Refreshments were spread and programs of recitations and songs were rendered. In some of the schools two or more grades united and one of the best entertainments was given at the Adams school building by the second, seventh and eighth grades. The exercise, which was held at three in the afternoon in the kindergarten rooms, was a patriotic operatta—"Columbia's Thanksgiving." It was presented under the direction of the Misses Clark, Joyce and Youngsians. The cast of characters which was assisted in the production by choruses of boys, of girls and of boys and girls from the three grades was as follows: "Columbia," Lucy Wilmot; "Uncle Sam," Emmett Murphy; "North," Ethel Fletcher; "South," Nellie Joerg; "East," Marion Proctor; "West," Verelle Rowley. Frances Reus presided at the piano.

A JOKE FOR SMOKERS

Try It on Your Bald-Headed Friends and Have a Laugh.

If you smoke a cigar that burns with good solid ashes that will not fall off until the cigar is half smoked up, such a cigar as the Wadsworth Bros' Chicots, sold by the Smith Drug Co., you can have a good joke on some bald-headed friend.

When there is an inch or two of ash on the end of the cigar just let it fall on that bald head and see how high it can jump. The ashes are not hot enough to burn, but they are warm enough to be felt.

The Chicots are a real ten-cent Havana filled cigar that the Smith Drug Co. sell for a nickel, and is the only 5c cigar where the ashes are firm and solid, like those of expensive grades. You will enjoy a Chico anyway, so try one and see how good it is.

BARBER'S ITCH.

One of the diseases most dreaded by men who patronize barber shops is barber's itch. It seems to be almost epidemic at the present time and is not confined to a single locality. The very best and cleanest barber shops are not exempt, and as a matter of fact, the disease may be, and frequently is, contracted from horses and cows, so the barber is not always to blame.

The disease is caused by a vegetable parasite or fungus which attacks the hair and hair follicles of the bearded region, and when not properly treated will persist almost indefinitely. I would like to give a detailed description of the condition so that it may readily be recognized, but will not at this time, but direct the attention to the prevention and cure of the difficulty.

In the first place, those who are shaved in a barber shop should not allow the scalding cloths to be placed upon the face after shaving. If the skin is examined under a powerful magnifying glass, after the shave, it will be found that in many cases the outer or scurf skin has been cut away and the surface is raw and almost bleeding. The application of moist heat relaxes the skin and opens the pores and if by any chance any of the fungus or parasites should then escape from the towel or the barber's finger-nails, the comb or elsewhere, a splendid resting is readily found, and if the barber then applies an oily liquid or paste to soothe the irritated skin, the best culture ground that could possibly be prepared is thus made ready and the parasite proceeds to burrow deeply and multiply.

After a light shave, use cold witch hazel extract or bay rum and glycerine, but not hot cloths. This is prevention in one way.

For a cure apply externally the following formula:

Field extract cinnamon.....1 oz.
Field extract witchhazel.....4 oz.
Glycerine acetate.....1 oz.
Mix well together and apply lightly morning and night. At the same time take internally the following combination:

Mag. phos.....6x
Calc. sulph.....6x
Silica.....12x

Dose four to six tablets every two to four hours, and, as improvement is noted, take three times per day; then once daily until the cure is complete. This system of treatment is safe and simple and will prove much more effective than the usual precipitated sulphur, sodium hyposulphite, mercuric chloride, or zinc oxide and ammoniated mercury ointment. No bad after effects will be noted and the external use of the liquid will prevent infection of others.

CLUB NOTES.

Mississippi.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: For some time I have been reading your communications in this paper and confess they are very helpful toward right living. I thought I would steal a moment this afternoon and have a consultation with you. First, have you any literature that you can send me, or do you publish any medical periodical and what is the price? Now can you tell me what is the matter and what can I do for a sore finger at the end and around the nail: my forefinger was in this condition, exactly for three years, and after great suffering around the old nail a new one grew out and the finger was well, but the one next to it, the second finger of the left hand, commenced to be sore in the same way and now at this writing it is very painful, and has been for about two years, and I should be willing to give almost anything to be relieved. It is something like what they term a "runabout," although I never had one. It is painful at the bone on one side only and the nail is getting rough looking and ugly, then at times it gets much better and then returns.

Let me hear from you, please, sir, if there is a remedy for it. Most respectfully, Mrs. H. K.

In regard to your finger. I suppose that the cause originally was a bruise on the bone; it is what is sometimes called whitlow or paronychia. Sometimes a cure of these conditions can be effected by dipping the member in almost scalding hot strong lye. This is heroic treatment, however, and sometimes causes a great deal of pain without giving the desired result. Therefore, I do not specifically recommend it, although many have used it with good results. A perfectly safe and almost absolutely certain method of treatment is in the use of silica, about 12x; a home remedy that is safe and harmless and of which I have sometimes spoken in my lectures. I think if you were to procure these and use them regularly the trouble would soon disappear. All signs of constipation must be overcome if you wish to get well and stay well.

Pennsylvania.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: I have been hoarse for three months and at times have a severe cough; what is it and what should be done with it? Does the doctor think it is a sort of hay fever, or what can it be? Reply through our paper will be noted with thankfulness. Respectfully, Mrs. L. P.

Hay fever is an acute coryza, or a condition in which there is a free discharge of watery fluid from the nose. Sometimes there is a great deal of sneezing and the water also runs from the eyes and mouth and is of a thin and salty nature.

There is seldom a cough or hoarseness. The trouble you describe is more in the nature of trouble or disease of the bronchial tubes and I am inclined to think that the exercises described in the Home Health Club Book of Lectures for the home cure of catarrh would be very beneficial. Kall. muf. taken in proper form for several weeks while taking the Home Health club exercises, would, I believe, complete the cure.

Montana.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Sir: I have read your lectures in this paper ever since you began writing them. I come to you for advice on something I do not understand.

I get so sleepy in the evening that I cannot read or study. I usually sleep about six hours when I lie awake until time to get up. Sometimes I sleep seven or eight hours, but I am just as sleepy the next evening. My habits are regular, health is fine, and this seems to be my only trouble. It is of several years' standing and seems to run in the family, as I remember my mother for years nodding over her knitting or reading in the evenings. Several of the children after they passed 30 are the same way. A towel wrung out of cold water and wrapped around my head will not keep me awake. I am 30 years old. Please send me a list of the books you have written with prices.

Thanking you for anything you may suggest, I remain yours very truly, M. B.

I should judge from the description that your trouble arises from indigestion, and I think it would be a wise plan for you to carefully and thoroughly regulate your diet, making a practice of masticating all of your food very thoroughly, and drink nothing while eating, but drink large quantities of water between meals. You should also eat very light suppers; the heartiest meal should be at midday, and your supper should be largely fruit and cereals. Do not drink any milk, tea or coffee. Rest for perhaps half an hour after eating the evening meal, after which you should take some light exercise; I think you can sit down and read with comfort. If you desire it, you could take a cup of hot milk before retiring; it should be sipped slowly, however, and taken very hot, but not boiled. This will have a tendency to make you sleep all night. I am sending literature describing all of the Home Health club books and lectures.

Illinois.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: We have been readers of the Home Health club department for some time, but are not members of the club. Would like information and particulars as to joining the club, also how to obtain the books. Would also like to know what you think of the condition of my husband. He is a farmer and for three years has been troubled with his arms paining him at night when he uses them more than usual. After picking corn for a couple of days, for instance, he cannot sleep nights—his arms ache so—and in the morning his hands are so swollen that he cannot close them at all, in fact, he is unable to do his milking. His arms and hands ache and prickle just as a limb does when we speak of it as being asleep. He has doctored considerably, but gets very little relief. I am sure the pain is severe, for he always gets very thin and all worn out when husking corn. He can get a little sleep by letting his arms hang over the edge of the bed, which gives him a little relief. They do not bother him at all during the day and after a couple of hours in the morning the swelling goes out of his hands. Do you think it is caused by poor circulation?

Any advice will be gratefully received. Sincerely yours, E. S.

In regard to the condition of your husband, if you will follow the Home Health club plan as described in the cloth-bound Book of Lectures, of placing a thorough hot fomentation to his spine, covering that portion from the tip of the shoulders down about to the middle of the back, at night, for about three-quarters of an hour, continuing it for two or three nights, I think a large portion of the symptoms of the trouble in his arms will be overcome. You should observe very carefully the methods of instructions given in the book of lectures. In addition to the method above referred to, the following should be carried out: Rub the back thoroughly with warm vinegar, good and strong, then rub it with warm olive oil, after which apply the fomentation, again rubbing thoroughly with the olive oil after the fomentation. The trouble is in the circulation, and this will benefit him generally. While he is lying upon his back upon the fomentation, you would do well to thoroughly massage the arms, using the olive oil and rubbing the flesh in all directions thoroughly and deeply. The fact that his arms and hands swell during the night indicate that there may be some kidney trouble; therefore I would suggest the use of a good herb remedy, like compound gentian syrup. This good old-fashioned herb remedy will not only benefit the kidneys, but also increase the activity of the organs of elimination, and other glands of the body, as you know, then the kidneys, etc. I trust you will find my suggestions of value, and in return you will decide to accept the invitation to join the Home Health club, which I have sent to you.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. All communications should be addressed to the Home Health Club or Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., and should contain name and address in full and at least four cents in stamps.

PUTS STOP TO MONEY-LENDING

Public Printer Stillings Disapproves of "Symposium Business."

Washington, Dec. 1.—Public Printer Stillings, who has just assumed office, has stamped his disapproval of the "symposium business," or money-lending associations, in the big public printer, and hereafter the symposiums will not be permitted to flourish there. Mr. Stillings proposes to clean up the whole business of money-lending in an effective manner. Not only does he propose forcing the payment of existing "symposium" debts, but legitimate debts of every kind. He does not believe a man or woman can do a fair day's work if harassed with debts. It has been shown conclusively that the borrowers of money at 2 per cent a week cannot hold up long, and it has also been made public that several of the managers and treasurers of these money-lending concerns have mismanaged affairs, and their friends and families, to say nothing of the stockholders, have been made to suffer.

PRESIDENT M'CALL TO RESIGN

Even Friends of New York Life Official Want Him to Go.

New York, Dec. 1.—It was said by a director of the New York Life that John A. McCall is to step out of the organization on Jan. 1 and that Geo. W. Perkins will retire at the same time. With these men will go young McCall and other relatives of the president. The information is that there was a stormy meeting last week and that the few defenders in the board of trustees of McCall and Perkins concluded they would better accept the situation outlined by the minority. John A. McCall would like to fight against removal, but he finds that he can make no headway now even with men who have been his friends for years.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH QUITS

Louisiana Doctors Angered by Jury Investigation of Fever Visitation.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 1.—The Louisiana state board of health, Dr. Edmund Sanchon, president, has resigned in a body and the resignations of the entire body were forwarded to Baton Rouge. This action was precipitated by a persistent intimation of Gov. Blanchard that he wanted an investigation as to how yellow fever got into Louisiana and who was responsible and by his last action of calling upon the grand jury of Orleans parish to investigate. Although the resignation of certain members of the board has been rumored, it is said the grand jury is what incensed the members.

He also says that Lawson to raise the money placed a mortgage for $200,000 on his wife's property.

International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, December 16th to 23rd.

In order to arrange for better facilities in handling the large attendance anticipated for this great annual event and on account of the inability of the builders to complete the magnificent new amphitheatre on time, it has been found necessary to postpone the Exposition until the dates above mentioned. All of the events advertised will be held on the days of the week corresponding to the dates arranged for the previous week. All preparations are being made to make the event one long to be remembered. The change in the date will bring it at a season of the year when it will no doubt be more convenient for a larger number to attend.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S HAIR.

Its Greatest Profusion Was Always a Cause of Wonder.

Even at the age of 80 years, Queen Victoria's hair was a marvel of luxuriance. The court physician, following Prof. Anna's discovery, undoubtedly treated her Majesty's scalp with a germ destroying preparation, that was not made public. It is now known, however, that the remedy known as Herpicide, the germ destroying element, is embodied in Newbro's Herpicide, the only hair preparation on the market that destroys the dandruff germ. Without dandruff, hair will grow profusely, and falling hair will be stopped. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. BISHOP PLACES AN ON HEIRESS

Young Woman Attends Marriage of Divorcee and Suffers Excommunication.

HAD BEEN WARNED IN ADVANCE

Head of Catholic Church in Omaha Notified His Parishioners Not to Assist at Wedding of Congressman Under Penalty.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 1.—Because she attended the wedding Wednesday of Congressman John L. Kennedy, a divorcee, and Miss Margaret Pritchett, Miss Mae Hamilton, a millionaire's daughter, has suffered excommunication from the Roman Catholic church. Miss Hamilton was one of the four bridesmaids. Few, if any other Roman Catholics, attended the wedding; some, however, attended the reception which followed, and these also may be punished. Among them was Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy.

Bishop Scannell declared publicly last Sunday that all Roman Catholics who assisted at or attended a wedding of a divorced person, while the other divorced partner is still alive would be excommunicated.

Notwithstanding the warning, Miss Hamilton decided to stand by her friend, and at Wednesday's function fulfilled the duties as they had been planned before the issuance of the bishop's manifesto.

Bishop Refuses Confession.

"All Roman Catholics who attended the Kennedy-Pritchett wedding became by that act and at that time without the pale of the church," said Bishop Scannell. He refused to say whether members of the demonstration other than Miss Hamilton attended the ceremony was also excommunicated, declaring that to be a plain theological proposition. "I do not know who attended the wedding," added the bishop. "Whoever they are, I gave them fair warning; they know the law and they must abide by what they have done. Those who did wrong knew it at the time and they will not seek confession, for they know that the sacraments are denied them. I understand there is a rumor that I gave permission to certain persons to attend the wedding. This is absolutely untrue. I did not and could not give such permission."

Bride's Mother Is Sorry.

Mrs. Pritchett, the mother of the bride, was asked what effect the bishop's pastoral had had on the attendance.

"My home was full," she replied. "Some of my friends, sent their regrets, but whether they remained away because of the pastoral I do not know. I regret exceedingly the discomfort and annoyance caused Miss Hamilton. I certainly would consider it a huge joke if the sole purpose of the bishop's pastoral was directed against an act of friendship on the part of one young girl toward her friend."

Miss Hamilton is still in her twenties. She and her sister, who are reputed to be the two wealthiest women in Omaha, are daughters of the late C. W. Hamilton, former president of the United States National bank. They are nieces of the late Frank Murphy, president of the Merchants' National bank and of the street railway company. From the Murphy estate as well as from their father both the girls inherited fortunes.

Conditions Are Altered.

Miss Hamilton declined to be interviewed. To a friend, however, she remarked: "The bishop should remember that young people nowadays are not what they used to be."

Because the bride is an Episcopalian, it was at first intended the wedding should take place at the Trinity cathedral, and it was only after two of the Episcopal clergy had refused to officiate that it was arranged that the ceremony should take place at the bride's home, and Rev. E. H. Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was called on to perform the ceremony. Mr. Jenks is pastor of the church of which Mr. Kennedy is a member.

WILL MARRY AT WASHINGTON

Comptroller Ridgley and Miss Katherine Deering Are to Wed.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Announcement of the approaching wedding of William Barrett Ridgley, comptroller of the currency, and Miss Katherine Deering has been made. The wedding will be celebrated before the new year. Miss Deering is the only daughter of the late Capt. George A. Deering, U. S. N. Mr. Ridgley is from Springfield, Ill. His first wife, a daughter of Senator Cullom, died two years ago. He has two daughters, the elder of whom entered society last year. The younger daughter is at school.

Johnson's Luck.

Plunger Won Fortune With Roseben Only to Lose It on Other Horses.

The winning of a princely fortune with a horse only to lose every cent of it in backing others is the brand of luck that has overtaken David C. (Davey) Johnson, the veteran horse owner and plunger.

That is a typical racing story. Racing is a game of seesaw if ever there was one and Johnson is simply getting more of the most costly experience in the world—horse racing experience.

Notwithstanding his assertion that he is broke on account of unfortunate wagers on other horses, Johnson, owner of the champion Roseben, won at least $185,500 on that remarkable sprinter in the season recently closed. His gross receipts on wagers alone were $243,500, but from that sum must be deducted $90,000 lost on Roseben, leaving $153,500 profit, to which must be added $20,000 of stake money, all won on an animal for which he paid $4,300 at Morris park, New York, last October.

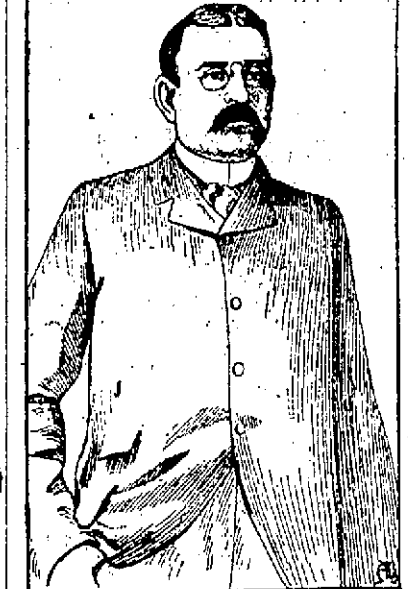

Roseben's campaign since last March has been one of the most remarkable for such a period of time in the history of the American turf. Out of twenty-four starts on tracks under jockey club control this great gelding has won fifteen races, has been second five, third once and placed three times, on one of which occasions he nearly fell down through being forced into the heavy going on the outside of the track at the Belmont park spring meeting.

Mr. Johnson, who has been interested in the turf for many years and has bet millions of dollars on races, customarily places $10,000 on Roseben to win, but once this season he played him "across the board," at odds of 8 to 1, the longest price offered for the whole twenty-four races. That was at Belmont park, New York, on May 6, and he collected $23,600. His biggest profits for one day were $23,000, at Saratoga, N. Y., on Aug. 22, when the price was 16 to 5.

Roseben's winning races this season and the profits taken by his owner were: Benning, March 27, 9 to 5, $18,000; April 4, 7 to 5, $14,000; Belmont, May 6, 8 to 1, $23,600; May 15, 11 to 5, $22,000; May 22, 9 to 5, $18,000; Sheepshead Bay, June 24, 8 to 5, $16,000; July 1, 8 to 5, $16,000; Brighton, July 5, 8 to 5, $10,000; July 15, 6 to 5, $12,000; July 25, 1 to 7, $14,000; Saratoga, Aug. 22, $22,000; Gravesend, Sept. 15, 2 to 1, $20,000; Sept. 18, 8 to 5, $16,000; Belmont, Oct. 4, 11 to 10, $11,000, and Oct. 6, 4 to 5, $8,000.

His losses were at Benning on April 1, Aqueduct on April 15 and 22, Belmont on May 8, Gravesend on June 13, Sheepshead Bay on June 16, Saratoga on Aug. 8, Sheepshead on Aug. 26 and 31. In the race of June 16, however, Roseben finished second at odds of 4 and 8 to 5, so that Mr. Johnson may be said to have "broken even" on that event. Nevertheless he asserts that all his winnings have been thrown away on other horses.

A TALENTED VIOLINIST.

Notable Success Abroad of Albert Spalding of New York.

A recent London cablegram announced that Albert Spalding, the young American violinist, made his first appearance before an English audience at Queen's hall, London, and met with remarkable success. Mr. Spalding, who is a son of J. Walter Spalding of New York, has had an exceptionally brilliant career as a student in various musical centers. Since his debut at ten years old in New York he has divided his time between Europe and America. He was heard in Florence at the age of twelve and two years later played at the promenade concerts in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, under the direction of Nahan Frauko. When fourteen he won at Bologna the diploma of professor of the violin, a title won at that age only once before and then by Mozart.

Last June he made his professional debut at the Nouveau theatre, Paris, France, and on this occasion his rendition of Saint-Saens' "Concerto," Beethoven's "Romance," Bach's "Chaconne" and Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen," a most difficult programme, held the audience spellbound. Mr. Spalding is rich in capability, plays with great sentiment and perfection of technique and is pronounced a finished virtuoso.

America can now claim the honor of being the birthplace of one of the greatest violinists of the age.

CATARRH FIRST A COLD THEN CATARRH THEN CONSUMPTION

A cold in the head is a common ailment, but it rarely ever stops there. It often grows stubborn and protracted, the mucous membranes, or inner lining of the body, become inflamed and secrete a filthy, unhealthy matter which is absorbed by the blood and soon produces that disgusting disease, Catarrh. Then follow the unpleasant symptoms of "hawking and spitting," ringing noises in the ears, headache, poor appetite, mucus dropping back into the throat, and a feeling of general debility. Every day the blood becomes more heavily loaded with these poisonous secretions, and if the trouble is allowed to run on, the lungs become diseased from the constant passage of poisoned blood through them, and then Catarrh terminates in the most dreaded and fatal of all diseases, Consumption. The only way to get rid of Catarrh permanently is to cleanse the blood, and S. S. S. is the ideal remedy for this purpose. It soon clears the system of all impurities, purges the blood of all Catarrhal matter and poisons, and effectively checks the progress of this dangerous and far-reaching disease. S. S. S. keeps the blood in perfect order so that Catarrh cannot remain; and as this pure, healthy blood goes to every nook and corner of the body, the entire system is strengthened and invigorated, and the symptoms all pass away. Book with information about Catarrh and medical advice free.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

The naked truth sometimes makes us shiver.

Always tell the truth—if you want to make trouble.

Put your business before your pleasure, or you won't have any.

The philanthropist generally manages to be caught in the act.

Don't brag about your future if your past won't bear close scrutiny.

Most of us expect better obituary notices than are coming to us.

Misplaced confidence is not always the result of being absent-minded.

It's a good plan to forgive your enemies before they get back at you.

Many a good resolution is wabbly because it hasn't sufficient backbone.

It is sometimes humane to kill a shattered hope, just to put it out of its misery.

When a man thinks he has the best wife in the world, she is pretty sure to agree with him.

The average man is perfectly willing to make a fool of himself if it will please some woman.

When a man marries, we are told he takes the fatal plunge. At any rate, he puts his foot in it.

Prosperity has ruined many a man, but if a fellow is going to be ruined at all that is the pleasant way.

ON BEING KIND.

How we all do love to criticize and pull each other to pieces!

Our mental attitude is that of the Pharisee; "I thank Thee, O Lord, that I am not as others."

And yet we are not one whit better than our neighbor whom we are so ready to criticize.

We are so busy looking for the "mote" in our friend's eye that we quite complacently ignore the "beam" in our own.

The habit of judging others harshly is very easily acquired.

We are scathing in our denunciation of J— for doing such and such a thing, and yet we are probably doing something ourselves that is quite as blameworthy.

It doesn't seem an altogether fair way of doing things, does it?

The only way to right things is to give up criticizing altogether.

If we can't find kind things to say about our friends we had much better hold our tongues.

Have you ever watched a group of women talking together?

If one leaves the group all the rest immediately begin to talk about her, and the chances are that the talk is of none too flattering a character.—Beatrice Fairfax in Chicago American.

The Holladay Case

A Mystery
Of Two Continents

By
BURTON E.
STEVENSON

"But is Miss Holladay cleared?" he persisted. "Is it not quite conceivable that in those two hours she was absent

They greeted me with a cheer when I entered.

from her carriage she may have changed her gown, gone to her father's office, and then changed back again? In that case, would she not naturally have chosen a green gown, since she never wore green?"

"Oh, nonsense," I cried. "That's puerile. Either she would disguise herself effectually or not at all. I suppose if you were going to commit a capital crime you would merely put on a high hat because you never wear one! I tell you this much: I'm morally certain that Miss Holladay is quite innocent; so, I believe, is the district attorney."

"But how about the note, Mr. Lester? What did it contain?"

"Oh, I can't tell you that, you know. It's none of my business."

"But you ought to treat us all alike," he protested.

"I do treat you all alike."

"But didn't Godfrey get it out of you?"

"Godfrey?" I repeated. "Get it out of me?"

He stared at me in astonishment.

"Do you mean to tell me, Mr. Lester, he questioned, 'that you haven't been spending the evening with Jim Godfrey of the Record?'"

Then, in a flash, I understood, and as I looked at the rueful faces of the men gathered about me I laughed until the tears came.

"So it was you," I gasped, "who chased us up Broadway?"

He nodded.

"Yes, but our horses weren't good enough. Where did he take you?"

"To the Studio—Sixth avenue."

"Of course," he cried, slapping his leg. "We might have known. Boys, we'd better go back to Podunk."

"Well, at least, Mr. Lester," spoke up another, "you oughtn't to give Godfrey a scoop."

"But I didn't give him a scoop. I didn't even know who he was."

"Didn't you tell him what was in the note?"

"Not a word of it. I told him only one thing."

"And what was that?"

"That the person who wrote the note didn't know that Rogers was color blind. You are welcome to that statement too. You see, I'm treating you all alike."

They stood about me staring down at me, silent with astonishment.

"But," I added, "I think Godfrey suspects what was in the note."

"Why?"

"Well, his theory fits it pretty closely."

"His theory? What is his theory, Mr. Lester?"

"Oh, come," I laughed. "That's telling. It's a good theory too."

They looked at each other, and, I fancied, gnashed their teeth.

"It seems a pretty clever fellow," I added, just to pile up the agony. "I fancy you'll say so, too, when you see his theory in tomorrow's paper."

"Clever!" cried Rankin. "Why, he's a very fine kind of cleverness when it comes to a case of this kind. We're not in the same class with him. He's a fancy fellow—just the Record kind. You're sure you didn't tell him anything else, Mr. Lester?" he added anxiously. "Godfrey's capable of getting a story out of a fence post."

"No, I'm quite sure I didn't tell him anything else. I only listened to his theory with great interest."

"And assented to it?"

"I said I thought it plausible."

An electric shock seemed to run around the room.

"That's it!" cried Rankin. "That's what he wanted. Now, it isn't his theory any more. It's yours. Oh, I can see his headlines! Won't you tell us what it was?"

I looked up at him.

"Now, frankly, Mr. Rankin," I asked, "if you were in my place would you tell?"

He hesitated for a moment and then held out his hand.

"No," he said as I took it. "I shouldn't. Shake hands, sir; you're all right. Come on, boys; we might as well be going."

They then all after him, and I heard them go ringing up the street. Then I sank back into my chair and thought again of Godfrey's theory. It seemed to fit the case precisely, point by point—even and I started at the thought—to Miss Holladay's reticence as to her whereabouts the afternoon before. The whole mystery lay plain before me. In some way she had discovered the existence of her half sister, had secured her address; she had gone to visit her and had found her away from home—it was probable, even, that the half sister had written her, asking her to come—though, in that case, why had she not remained at home to receive her? At any rate, Miss Holladay had awaited her return, had noticed her agitation; had, perhaps, even seen certain marks of blood upon her. The news of her father's death had pointed all too clearly to what that agitation and those blood spots meant. She had remained silent that she might not besmirch her father's name, and also, perhaps, that she might protect the other woman. I felt that I held in my hand the key to the whole problem.

Point by point—but what a snarl it was! That there would be a vigorous search for the other woman I could not doubt, but she had a long start and should easily escape. Yet perhaps she had not started. She must have remained in town, else how could that note have been sent to us? She had remained, then—but why? That she should feel any affection for Frances Holladay seemed absurd, and yet how else explain the note?

I felt that I was getting tangled up in the snarl again. There seemed no limit to its intricacies; so, in very despair, I put the matter from me as completely as I could and went to bed.

The morning's Record attested the truth of Rankin's prophecy. I had grown famous in a night, for Godfrey had in a measure made me responsible for his theory, describing me with a wealth of adjectives which I blush to remember and which I have even yet not quite forgiven him. I smiled as I read the first lines:

A Record representative had the pleasure yesterday evening of dining with Mr. Warwick Lester, the brilliant young attorney who achieved such a remarkable victory before Coroner Goldberg yesterday afternoon in the hearing of the Holladay case, and, of course, took occasion to discuss with him the latest developments of this extraordinary crime. Mr. Lester agreed with the Record in a theory which is the only one that fits the facts of the case and completely and satisfactorily explains all its ramifications.

The theory was then developed at great length, and the article concluded with the statement that the Record was assisting the police in a strenuous endeavor to find the guilty woman.

Now that the police knew in which quarter to spread their net, I had little doubt that she would soon be found, since she had tempted Providence by remaining in town.

Mr. Graham and Mr. Royce were looking through the Record article when I reached the office, and I explained to them how the alleged interview had been secured. They laughed together in appreciation of Godfrey's audacious enterprise.

"It seems a pretty strong theory," said our senior. "I'm inclined to believe it myself."

I pointed out how it explained Miss Holladay's reticence—her refusal to assist us in proving an alibi. Mr. Royce nodded.

"Precisely. As Godfrey said, the theory touches every point of the case. According to the old police axiom, that proves it's the right one."

CHAPTER VII.

THE body of Hiram Holladay was placed beside that of his wife in his granite mausoleum at Woodlawn on the Sunday following his death. Two days later his will, which had been drawn up by Mr. Graham and deposited in the office safe, was read and duly admitted to probate. As was expected, he had left all his property, without condition or reserve, to his daughter Frances. There were a few bequests to old servants, Rogers receiving a handsome legacy; about half a million was given to various charities in which he had been interested during his life, and the remainder was placed at the absolute disposal of his daughter.

We found that his fortune had been overestimated, as is usually the case with men whose wealth depends upon the fluctuations of the Street, but there still remained something over four millions for the girl—a pretty dowry. She told us at once that she wished to leave her affairs in our hands and in financial matters would be guided entirely by our advice. Most of this business was conducted by our junior, and, while, of course, he told me nothing, it was evident that Miss Holladay's kindly feelings toward him had suffered no diminution. The whole office was more or less conversant with the affair and wished him success and happiness.

So a week or ten days passed. The utmost endeavor of newspapers and police had shed no new light on the tragedy, and for the great public it had passed into the background of the forgotten, but for me, at least, it remained of undiminished interest, and more than once I carefully reviewed its features to convince myself anew that our theory was the right one. Only one point occurred to me which would tend to prove it untrue—if there was an illegitimate daughter, the blow she had dealt her father had also deprived her of whatever income he had allowed her or of any hope of income from him; so she had acted in her own despite—Still, Godfrey's theory of sudden passion might explain this away. And then again Miss Holladay could probably be counted upon, her first grief past, to provide suitably for her sister. Granting this, the theory seemed to me quite impregnable.

One other thing puzzled me—how had this woman eluded the police? I knew that the French quarter had been ransacked for traces of her, wholly without success, and yet I felt that the search must have been misdirected, else some trace of her would surely have been discovered. Miss Holladay, of course, rigidly refused herself to all inquirers, and here again I found myself on the horns of a dilemma. Doubtless she was very far from wishing the discovery of the guilty woman, and yet I felt that she must be discovered, if only for Miss Holladay's sake, in order to clear away the last vestige of the cloud that shadowed her.

Then came new developments with a startling rapidity. It was toward quitting time one afternoon that a clerk brought word into the inner office that there was a woman without who wished to see Mr. Royce at once. She had given no name, but our junior, who happened to be at leisure for the moment, directed that she be shown in. I recognized her in an instant, and so did he—it was Miss Holladay's maid. I saw, too, that her eyes were red with weeping, and as she sat down beside our junior's desk she began to cry afresh.

"Why, what's the matter?" he demanded. "Nothing wrong with your mistress?"

"She ain't my mistress any more," sobbed the girl. "She discharged me this afternoon."

"Discharged you?" echoed our junior. "Why, I thought she thought so much of you?"

"And so did I, sir, but she discharged me just the same."

"But what for?" persisted the other.

"That's just what I don't know, sir. I begged and prayed her to tell me, but she wouldn't even see me. So I came down here. I thought maybe you could help me."

"Well, let me hear about it just as it happened," said Mr. Royce soothingly. "Perhaps I can help you."

"Oh, if you could, sir," she cried.

"You know, I thought the world and all of Miss Frances. I've been with her nearly eight years, and for her to go and treat me like this—why, it just breaks my heart, sir! I dressed her this afternoon about 2 o'clock, and she was as nice to me as ever—gave me a little brooch, sir, that she was tired of. Then she went out for a drive, and about an hour ago came back. I went right up to her room to undress her, and when I knocked, sir, a strange woman came to the door and said that Miss Frances had engaged her for her maid and wouldn't need me any more, and here was a month's wages. And while I stood there, sir, too dazed to move, she shut the door in my face. After I'd got over it a bit, I begged that I might see Miss Frances, if only to say goodby, but she wouldn't see me. She sent word that she wasn't feeling well and wouldn't be disturbed."

Her sobs mastered her again and she stopped. I could see the look of amazement on our junior's face, and did not wonder at it. What sudden dislike could her mistress have conceived against this inoffensive and devoted creature?

"You say this other maid was a stranger?" he asked.

"Yes, sir; she'd never been in the house before, so far as I know. Miss Frances brought her back with her in the carriage."

"And what sort of looking woman is she?"

"The girl hesitated.

"She looked like a foreigner, sir," she said at last. "A Frenchwoman, maybe, by the way she rolls her r's."

I picked up my ears. The same thought occurred at that instant to both Mr. Royce and myself.

"Does she resemble Miss Holladay?" he asked quickly.

"Miss Holladay? Oh, no, sir. She's much older—her hair's quite gray."

Well, certainly, Miss Holladay had the right to choose any maid she pleased and to discharge any or all of her servants; and yet it seemed strangely unlike her to show such seeming injustice to any one.

"You say she sent down word that she was ill?" said Mr. Royce at last.

"Was she ill when you dressed her?"

"Why, sir," she answered slowly, "I wouldn't exactly say she was ill, but she seemed troubled about something. I think she'd been crying. She'd been crying a good deal, off and on, since her father died; poor thing," she added.

That would explain it, certainly, and yet grief for her father might not be the only cause of Frances Holladay's tears.

"But she didn't seem vexed with you?"

"Oh, no, sir; she gave me a brooch, as I told you."

"I fear I can't promise you anything," said Mr. Royce slowly, after a moment's thought. "Of course it's none of my business, for Miss Holladay must arrange her household to suit herself; yet if you don't get back with your old mistress, I may perhaps be able to find you a position somewhere else. Suppose you come back in three or four days, and I'll see what I can do."

"All right, sir, and thank you," she said, and left the office.

CLAIM MORGAN IS EASY VICTIM

Financier Is Said to Have Been Worsted in Purchase of Railroad.

PAYS BIG PRICE FOR SYSTEM

Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Line
Is Sold to the New Yorker Under Conditions That Cast Reflection on His Judgment.

New York, Dec. 1.—Wall street is laughing at J. P. Morgan, the "eminent financier," the "king of corporation experts," who has made a life study of railroads, for the way in which he was hoaxed into buying the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton system at a high price and then turning it over to the Erie as a prize package.

Such a smart man, says Wall street, and such an easy victim. It is said the Vanderbilt and Harriman interests in Erie brought about the sale to Mr. Morgan. According to Wall street, Mr. Morgan just before he snatched up the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, was led into several blind traps.

Did Not Mention Debt.

It is alleged the financial statements made to Mr. Morgan were at variance with the books of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton system; that the allied system has a floating debt of $6,500,000 for rails and other purchases of material of which no mention was made in the statement to Mr. Morgan; that valuable rights were given to the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton for trackage facilities at Detroit and Toledo absolutely without consideration, concealment of which was made in the transfer of the property to Mr. Morgan; that contracts of a similar character giving valuable rights to the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton were entered into about the time of the transfer of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton to Mr. Morgan without the knowledge of Mr. Morgan. The statement was made by interests allied with Erie that these contracts were actually drawn after the transfer and antedated.

Cannot Enter Coal Fields.

It is also said it has been learned since Mr. Morgan's purchase of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, that that system has no rights over the new bridge across the Ohio river which the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton is building at Ironton, O., which will give it entrance into the coal fields of Kentucky. It was understood at the time of the purchase that this bridge was to be one of the best assets of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton system in that the road was to enjoy equal rights with the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton over it.

All these charges are the outgrowth as alleged, of a recent investigation which President Underwood and his vice presidents recently made in person of the physical and financial condition of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton property.

Fails to Meet Charges.

It has been learned further, as alleged, that the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton has failed to meet its fixed charges for the current year by nearly $1,000,000. The road recently issued $3,000,000 of bonds to pay off an issue of $2,500,000, which matured in October.

All of these allegations were communicated to Mr. Morgan, it is said, on Nov. 12 by President Underwood and were received with great surprise. Mr. Morgan held a conference with his associates and he then determined to take back the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton from the Erie.

The future of the road is now uncertain. The property has a certain value to nearly all of the trunk lines that cross the Ohio valley. It is believed Mr. Morgan's first step will be to rid the system of the contracts which have been saddled upon it.

Ready For Ice Sports

Increase of Interest In West and East—Champion Morris Wood.
Phil Kearney of New York Looks Dangerous.
News of the Rinks.

Skaters and hockey players are now ready for the winter's work. In Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati, New York, Boston and Philadelphia patrons of the steel runners have multiplied greatly, and a record breaking season is anticipated.

The old guard of racing, which includes such men as Champion Morris Wood of Long Branch, N. J., America's fastest outdoor amateur; Harry Lee, Phil Kearney, Walter Smith and a few others who have made the name of the Claremont rink, Brooklyn, famous by their achievements, are practicing now at the St. Nicholas rink, New York, and are already beginning to show signs of speed. It does not take a skater very long to get into condition, as the majority of them follow up some other branch of sport during the summer and in that way are always in prime condition.

Of the candidates for championship honors this year Phil Kearney of the New York A. C. seems to stand out as the most prominent. Kearney did great work last year and has improved wonderfully and this early in the present season is showing a burst of speed that will bring him home a winner many times.

The New York A. C. will, as usual, have a strong team in skating as in swimming. The New York club does more to make the sport a success than any other club or association in the country and in consequence attracts most of the champion athletes to its "stables."

Manager Fisher of the St. Nicholas rink has announced a series of races to be held at the rink beginning in January and will try to have all of the best men in the country compete. He has assigned special training hours for the speed merchants.

Special attention will be given to novices this winter, and it is the intention of the National Skating association to foster the unknowns and try to get more good men for the handicap and championship events.

Claremont rink in Brooklyn, which has been the Mecca of the speed skaters in the past, will live up to its reputation this year for giving good prizes, and plenty of them, and has arranged the biggest programme of races in its history.

At Verona lake, near Montclair, N. J., the usual holiday outdoor races will be held, and there Morris Wood, who does not shine in the small indoor rinks, will have his innings and expects to make his opponents take to the rinks again.

"Bulldog" Clayton.

The wrestler "Bulldog" Clayton, who was in America several years ago and who has been out of the running for some time, is back again on the mat. Clayton was once the recognized champion of England at catch-as-catch-can. He has just challenged Jim Meior of Stalybridge, and if nothing goes amiss the pair shortly will have it out in London.

New Turf Partnership.

W. H. Snyder and W. H. Jenks have registered with the Jockey club a partnership agreement in ten yearling horses, which will be trained and will race in the name of Snyder.

Elections in France.

The president of France is elected for seven years, by a majority of votes of the senate and chamber of deputies, united in a national assembly or congress.

Tired, nervous and irritable, the mother is unfit to care for her children, and her condition ruins the child's disposition and reacts upon herself.

The mother should not be blamed, as she no doubt is suffering with backache, headache, bearing-down pains or displacement, making life a burden.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all displacements and irregularities.

Such testimony as the following should convince women of its value:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles. I was nervous, tired and irritable, and it did not seem as though I could stand it any longer. As I had five children to care for, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it has entirely cured me. I cannot thank you enough for your letter of advice and for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Mrs. P. Hoffman, 100 Elmwood Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Pinkham advises sick women free. Address, Lynn, Mass.

SHE WHO HESITATES LOSES

The Girl Who Is Slow to Decide Upon Proposal of Marriage Sometimes Gets Left.

There is a Philadelphia girl who has learned that so far as a proposal is concerned he or she who hesitates is lost, says the Philadelphia Record. A very eligible and estimable young man had long been making it evident that his attentions to her were serious, and the other evening he made a formal declaration. She could not even put forward the orthodox ruse about the suddenness of the proposal.

Being of a rather vacillating turn of mind, she said she could not give him a decided answer. "I am not at all sure that I love you," the girl declared; "you must give me time to think about it." Considerably taken aback by what he considered her lack of decision of character the young man agreed to wait a week for her final decision.

So the wooed but not yet won maiden went to her bed that night pondering deeply. About 12 o'clock she was awakened to receive a telegram which read: "You need not mind about deciding that matter until next week; I've found a girl who said 'yes' to-night."

THE LARGEST STAIRWAY.

Twenty Thousand Steps Cut in Mountain Up Which Chinese Toil.

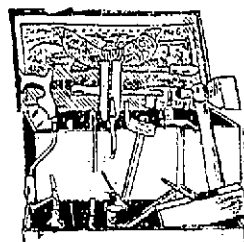

Mount Omi, on the border between Western China and Tibet, has the longest staircase in the world. On top of the mountains there stands a Buddhist temple, around which gather some of the boldest traditions of that religion, and which is made a Mecca to the Chinese.

To facilitate the ascent of its slippery sides some 20,000 steps have been cut in the morning forming a single flight, up which the pilgrim toils.

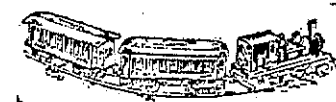

Because of its inaccessibility few Europeans have ever visited the spot, but a number of travelers have ascended the stairway and are positive that it is no legendary myth.

There is a legend that in earlier times the pilgrim was forced to ascend the mountain without artificial aids, until the monks conceived the plan of requiring every pilgrim who would gain equal benefit of his journey to cut a single step.

SPECIAL CLEAN UP

OF

Winter Shirt Waists

Astounding Price Reductions!

We place on sale tomorrow about six dozen of high grade manufacture, mohair brilliantine and all wool flannel Shirt Waists, in good dark colorings, elegantly and serviceably made. Actual former prices were $2.00, $3.00 and $3.50 each; most of them are the $3.00 quality. We offer them at the remarkable price of

$1.00 EACH

Our reason for sacrificing these waists is that we need room for our holiday goods, and that we do not allow goods to accumulate from one season to another. Here is a great opportunity to save money; do not fail to take advantage of it.

Only 19 Shopping Days to Xmas

Our holiday goods are now being displayed. A splendid showing of Dolls, Toys, Work Boxes, Fancy Stationery, Perfumery, etc., etc., at most reasonable prices.

The Big Value Givers!

Qualities of durability, shape-keeping and comfort are items to be carefully considered when purchasing Shoes. These points bear particularly upon winter footwear, as at this season of the year weather conditions impose much more severe wear upon shoes than at any other time. The purchaser should consequently use great discretion, and supply themselves only with goods that have a reputation back of them for quality and workmanship.

The "SILKID,"

One of the best Shoes for Women, all leathers, both lace and button, all sizes and widths, at—

$3.00 and 3.50

The "GLORIA,"

Another snappy, stylish Shoe for Women, comes in patent colt and vici kid, lace and button; can fit any foot; at, per pair—

$3.50

A Genuine Shell Cordovan Shoe for Men

You know what that means. It's a shoe that is absolutely water proof, and is especially applicable to winter wear. Made Blucher cut, double sole, at—

$3.50 and $4.00.

The Hanan Shoe

is distributed locally by the Luby store. A shoe that has stood the test of half a century's wear by well dressed men the world over. When you buy a Hanan, you have secured the best there is and they come

$5.00 and $5.50

Our line of Vici, Gun Metal and Box Calf Shoes at $2.50 is complete.

HOLIDAY OPENING

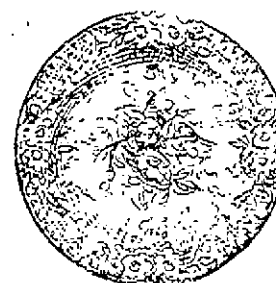

We have been planning for months to get together for this season's trade, a stock of

Furniture, Cut Glass,

CROCKERY, CHINA, TOYS, DOLLS, ETC.

A stock that cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

That we have succeeded is the opinion of all those who have inspected it; but we want your opinion. We want you to come and inspect this great stock of useful, artistic and honestly made goods.

We know that you will be surprised and pleased at the many beautiful and serviceable things here shown suitable for gift giving.
